WELLCOME HISTORICAL MEDICAL LIBRARY

ADDRESS.

From the great extent and variety of objects contained in the London Museum, the Proprietor finds it utterly impossible to publish the whole of the Auction Catalogue, with that descriptive accuracy which the subject requires, in time for the requisite circulation previous to the commencement of the sale; he is therefore under the necessity of circulating it in Parts (each Part containing Six Days Sale), which will be published with all possible dispatch, until the whole is complete.

In submitting the whole of this valuable Collection to the hammer, without the smallest reserve or purchasing in, either directly or indirectly, Mr. Bullock trusts to the liberality of the Public, and confidently expects to receive a fair remuneration for the articles which now compose the London Museum; a Collection, which is the result of Thirty Years unremitting attention, under the auspices of the most scientific characters, not only in this country, but in various other parts of the world; and which has been formed at an expense considerably exceeding 30,000*l.*

As many of the articles of Natural History in this Museum have been collected in several places, and under a variety of circumstances, by Mr. Bullock himself, he trusts that his knowledge of many particulars, which may add interest or value to the articles themselves, will be a sufficient apology (if any be necessary for the manner in which a man chooses to dispose of his own property) for his appearing before the Public in the new character of an Auctioneer: a character which he hopes to convince those who may do him the honour of attending the sale, he has not assumed from any unworthy pecuniary motive, but from a proper desire to apprize the bidder of the actual circumstances connected with the article he may wish to buy, that he may be fairly and fully in possession of its nature and character.

The duration of the sale can at present be only a matter of conjecture: it will probably not extend to more than twenty days, as it is deemed advisable, for the benefit of the Naturalist and curious Collector, that some of the large cases containing whole Families of one Genus, should not be separated, but that the fine and unique perfect Genera of Birds of Paradise, Humming Birds, Echini, &c. &c. should be offered for sale unbroken, so as to ensure to Science and Art, the benefit of their formation according to their present arrangement.

Any catalogue of a sale so various and complicated as this, must be necessarily incomplete. A catalogue must rather lead the eye to the article than explain it in detail; but from the nature of even one branch of this collection, the Ornithological department, a detail is utterly impossible within the limits of any printed statement intended for general perusal. The almost exclusive command of the seas, during a protracted war, successively filled this country from every part of the world with the most novel and extraordinary specimens in this branch of Natural History, which generally centred in this Museum, and formed an important part of its extensive attractions. There are many thousands of birds unknown (chiefly owing to what we have already said of the maritime nature of the late war) to continental Naturalists, and for which, names are not to be found in the Linnæan classification. The Proprietor is aware of what he must suffer from the impossibility of describing in detail a very large part of this branch of his collection; but as he repeats his fixed determination to sell without reserve, he relies that the liberality of the lovers of Natural History, who must be aware of the value of particular articles in their branch of study, which he cannot describe as they deserve, will give him that assistance on this occasion to which they may think his labours entitle him, and his collection deserves: he neither asks nor expects more. The Proprietor, as they must see, availed himself of the great opportunities his country possessed during the late war of enriching this branch of his collection at a great expense. He now confidently relies that the result of his labours will not prove an eventual bar to the laudable enterprise of future Collectors.

 Ladies and Gentlemen who may not have an opportunity of attending the sale, and who may desire to purchase particular articles, may have their commissions faithfully and diligently executed, on application to Mr. Bullock at the Museum, previous to the Sale.

80 Elegant small Tazza of Rosa Antique
81 Pair of handsome Columns of Rosa Antique, and other ancient Marbles 82 A superb Square Tazza, finely sculptured in Giallo Antico; a fac simile of one in the Vatican, height 1 ft. 5 in. breadth 1 ft. 4 in.
83 A group of Flowers and Fruit, elaborately sculptured in Statuary Marble 84 A noble Tazza of the richest Sicilian Jasper, not quite perfect, 1 ft. 6 in. high, 2 ft. 2 in. broad 85 The Black and White Porphyry Column, supporting the last lot 86 A massive elegant modern Two-handed Tazza, executed at Rome out of one piece of black and gold Marble, 1 ft. 6 in. high by 2 ft. 7 in. across 87 The Pedestal which supports the last lot—of antique Marble, with sculptured statuary base
88 A magnificent Semi-circular Table, composed of one hundred various kinds of marbles found in Devonshire; a matchless article of its kind, 4 ft. 10 in. diameter
89 An elegant Therm for supporting a bust or lamp, 4 ft. 4 in. high, composed of the most rare and beautiful Serpentine and Marble
90 A ditto, its companion
91 A massive Therm of Red and White Marble, with capital and base of Verde Antique
92 Ditto, its companion
93 Small bronzed Tripod Table
94 Slab of curious Red and White Marble, supported by a large bronzed Eagle 95 Slab of Sicilian Jasper, on bronzed legs
96 Fine Slab of the Oriental Antique Alabaster, bordered with Verde Antique, and supported on bronzed Grecian legs
97 A magnificent and matchless Antique Mosaic

Floor, in the highest preservation, taken from the Bath of Nero at Rome; it is in nine pieces, and can easily be removed or put together

98 A Circular ditto of five pieces, 9 ft. 3 in. diameter, from the same apartment as the last, and of the finest workmanship. It is presumed that nothing of this kind, without the walls of the Vatican, will bear a comparison with these superb articles, which are unquestionably the finest that have been suffered to leave Rome

99 Antique Slab of Mosaic, for a Table

100 Column of Black and White Porphyry

101 Ditto Brechia de Corroli

102 Table of curious Marble composed of Fossil Shells, supported by bronzed Dolphins

103 A collection of Carvings in Ivory, in alto relievo, consisting of the Twelve Cæsars, thirteen Heads of Ancient Philosophers, &c. and whole lengths of Antinous Flora, and Venus de Medicis, from the antique, of the finest execution

104 Models of Seneca and Paulina, in rice paste; framed

105 The original Model of the Colossial Statue of Napoleon, twelve feet high, which was taken from the top of the celebrated Column of Peace in the place Vendome, when the Allies entered Paris in 1814; it represents the Ex-Emperor in the full Roman costume, one hand resting on a Sword, the other supporting a Globe, on which is placed a beautiful winged Figure of Peace: the Bronze Statue which was cast from this Model has been destroyed by order of the present Government; this therefore now is the only authority we have left of this stupendous production of French Art, which was intended to perpetuate and hand down to posterity, the resemblance of the Man in whose hands the destinies of Europe seemed then placed SECOND DAY'S SALE.

FRIDAY, April 30, 1819.

PICTURES, A FEW BIRDS, PROPERTY OF NAPOLEON, &c.

LOT

17 Landscape—Salvator Rosa
18 Ditto,—from ditto
19 Virgin and Child, and St. Anthony—Corregio 20 Rape of Proserpine—Rubens; a curious sketch, very unlike his work, but unquestionably painted by him at Genoa, at the time he was copying the works of Titian

21 Ditto, its companion

22 Landscape, with cattle—Berghem

23 Ditto, its companion

24 Ruins—from Pannani

25 Ditto, ditto

30 The meeting of David and Abigail—Rubens

31 Portrait of Marshal Blucher, in enamel, by Le Fevre

32 Ditto of the Hetman Platoff

33 The Cattle Market, in the Campio Vacchino at Rome—Van Bloemen; a very fine example of that master

34 Landscape—Moucheron

35 Historical—Paul Veronese

36 Man with Garlic—Velasquez

Beautiful Birds arranged in bell Glasses for Chimney Piece Ornaments.

37 The Glossy Thrush; extremely rare

38 The Nonpareil Parrot of Botany Bay; remarkably fine

39 Three Glasses, containing the Ruby Topaz, Humming Bird, the Emerald Crested ditto, the Green Gold ditto, and the Black Breasted

40 Three ditto, nearly similar

41 Three Humming Birds, and the Blue Creeper in three glasses

42 The Bishop, and Purple Tanager

43 The Spotted Tanager, and Blue Creeper from Senegal; very rare

44 Yellow-faced Parrot, S. America

The following Articles were originally the property of the late Ruler of France; the pictures, painted to commemorate the principal acts of his public life, once decorated the walls of the Louvre, or his private palaces; the other works of Art will be found deserving attention, from the exquisite manner in which they are executed. It is probable that not so much of the property of the late Emperor of France can now be found together as will be offered in this Day's Sale.

45 A small Tripod, modelled from the Antique, in Terra Cotta, by the Empress Josephine 46 A superb Pedestal of Buhl and or-molu
47 Ditto, its companion
48 The Military Saddle (of crimsom velvet) and Bridle of Napoleon

56 Pair of large Forks, to match
57 Pair of ditto
58 Six Butter Knives
59 Six ditto
60 A Dozen Silver-handled Table Knives, strongly gilt
61 A beautiful Plate or Salver of Glass (damaged) superbly engraved with the arms and initials of Napoleon

62 Two elegant engraved Tumblers of cut Glass

63 Superb Sword of Napoleon when Frst Consul of the Republic

64 Baton of a French Marshal; said to be Ney's

65 Ribbon and Gold Cross of the Legion of Honour of Sicily, left by Joseph Buonaparte at the battle of Vittoria. Cross weighs 3 oz. of fine gold

66 Handsome Plated pair of Cuirasses and Helmet of an officer of Napoleon's guard

67 Ditto, ornamented with or-molu

68 A Silver Helmet; from Waterloo

69 The Eagle and Colours of a French regiment

70 The two Arms of the State Carriage; in or-molu

71 Trophy of French Arms, &c. taken at Waterloo:—Pictures chiefly painted under his own direction; among them is a succession of Portraits of himself; showing the gradual change of his form and countenance during almost the whole of his public career.

72 Buonaparte crossing the Alps, from David's great picture, by one of his pupils

73 The Peace of Amiens

This picture bears an inscription in French, as follows:—" France, England, and Austria swear to maintain peace. Peace herself, and Minerva attend them. On the left of the picture a curtain, drawn aside, displays the temple of Janus, whence the consular authority drives Discord, Envy, and Pride. The Genius of France with a lighted torch destroys even the appearance of her triumphs. The Arts re-appear, Mercury proceeds to announce peace to Europe. At the sound of the proclamation the people give themselves up to joy. The smoke of cannon, which rises above the walls, evinces the public gratulation."

74 The Entrance of the First Consul into Lyons, for the purpose of instituting the Cisalpine Consulate

The French inscription is as follows:—" The peace-making hero is received at the gates of Lyons, and as he approaches to pass under the triumphal arch of Septimus Severus, the town of Lyons expresses her gratitude by the deputies of the Cisalpine consulship. The hero is seated in a car conducted by Minerva, who is constantly attended by Victory."

75 The First Consul reinstating Religion; a crayon drawing, from which a large picture was executed for the Louvre

76 The Capture of Ulm; crayon

The following is the translation of the original inscription still on it:—" Preceded by the wise Minerva, Napoleon points to Vienna as the object of his wishes. The Imperial Eagle as yet holds the menacing thunder. The towns of Bavaria follow with enthusiasm the car of the conqueror. Fame publishes the glory of this incomparable hero. Europe herself is seized with astonishment. The city of Ulm delivers her keys to Mercury, the emblem of the Emperor's promptitude and vigilance."

77 The Genius of France conducting the Works of Ancient Art and the Trophies of recent Conquest to the city of Paris—painted by Collet

It is thus described in the inscription:—" The Genius of France, holding in one hand the thunder, and presenting with the other the symbol of Peace, is raised on a military scaffold by fourteen Fames, who celebrate at once the triumphs of each army. Time bears to Immortality the names of those heroes who died on the field of honour. Beneath is the vessel of state laden with trophies from Italy. The Government, figured by Hercules, destroys by the strength of his club the enemies of order and peace, who are represented under the emblem of the Hydra."

78 Napoleon returning to France with the Treaty of Presbourg; a beautiful picture, the colouring almost equal to Rubens

79 The Entry of Buonaparte into Warsaw

"Napoleon, mounted on the car of Victory, presents himself at the gates of Warsaw. The inhabitants, of all ages and of both sexes, run in crowds before their deliverer, and through the mediation of their magistrates, solicit him to protect their laws. 'I have broken your chains,' said the hero, 'and I will defend your constitution with the sword'."

80 Buonaparte visiting the Field of Eylau after the Battle; a fine crayon drawing, framed and glazed

81 Meeting of the Emperors of France and Russia on the raft at Tilsit; a fine picture, containing Portraits of the most celebrated persons in the French and Russian armies: painted on the spot for Napoleon, by Goutherot

82 Buonaparte distributing the Prizes to the Artists of France, in the Sculpture Gallery of the Louvre

In this very exquisite picture the mind is reclaimed from the contemplation of slaughter and desolation, and is invited to a scene, in which our nobler faculties receive their appropriate homage. This work is executed by Mons. Boilly; contains faithful Portraits of the court of Napoleon, as well as of the principal artists of France: it has never been engraved.

83 Whole length Portrait, as large as life, of Josephine, first Empress of France; by Rol Lefevre, painted for the Ex-King of Spain, whence it was brought by an English officer

84 Buonaparte returning from Madrid; ditto, Resting after giving Peace to Spain; a pair of crayon paintings, framed and glazed

85 Birth of the King of Rome

The painter has represented the Infant lying upon a couch, under a transparent veil. The shield is supported by a figure of Fame, and on one side of it are the Graces, the principal of whom is Maria Louisa, and the other two are upholding the imperial crown and sceptre. On the other side of the shield is Buonaparte, in the attire of Mars. Over the couch is Mercury, flying towards Heaven, bearing a shield, on which are inscribed the initials of this celebrated Infant.

It bears this inscription: "The wishes of this august pair, and those of all France, are accomplished: already has Mars promised valour to this Infant, and the Graces present to him the crown and sceptre."

86 The Great Picture of the Battle of the Moskwa, painted on the spot by Franque, who accompanied the army for the purpose. Napoleon on horseback, as large as life, is addressing the army on the commencement of that dreadful conflict: "Soldiers, behold the sun of Austerlitz!" In this picture are portraits of Murat, Ney, Berthier, Ruslar, &c., as large as nature.

87 A magnificent Case of Arms, containing a Rifle-barrelled Gun, a pair of Duelling Pistols, and a pair of Pocket Pistols. They were made at the celebrated Imperial manufactory at Versailles, and were presented by Buonaparte to Marshal Brune, from whose widow they were recently purchased. The price paid for them by Napoleon was 26,500 francs. But even that immense sum will not be considered as exorbitant by those who may have the opportunity of inspecting them. The workmanship is elaborate and ingenious; the materials of decoration are extremely costly, and the taste which prevades the whole, evinces a cultivated, as well as a fertile mind. The gun in particular is enriched with pure gold, wrought into different colours, and exhibiting an excellence of workmanship that surpasses even the value of the metal. The barrels of them all deserve much admiration, from the beautiful and varying tints of green and blue which they display, and which have been produced by the peculiarly high temperature of the steel. These productions will be regarded by British artizans with peculiar interest, for they are considered to be without equal in Europe. His Royal Highness the Prince Regent is known to possess the finest collection of guns that ever was formed, but he has not any which can be placed in competition with these.

88 A Case containing the Double-barrelled Fowling Piece, with which Napoleon pursued the amusement of shooting during the last six years of his imperialism. This tasteful and highly finished Fowling Piece is ornamented with gold and silver, in various devices of classic and sporting allusion. It was made by Lepage, the gun-maker to the Emperor, and bears the initial N. on the gold between the barrel.

89 A small Case containing a pair of beautiful Pistols, manufactured for the King of Rome, by Lepage. They are superbly mounted in gold, and ornamented with every appropriate decoration that taste and fancy could suggest, and ingenuity could execute; the Imperial Eagle, the Bees, and the N. are not forgotten. The whole apparatus is complete. The Case itself justly deserves notice: it is formed of a curious wood, and is beautifully inlaid with pearl. The centre piece represents the Centaur teaching the young Achilles to shoot.

SERPENTS AND LIZARDS.

There are several Cases filled with Serpents and Lizards, each Case to be sold separately; they are classed according to the best arrangement for the display of their peculiar appearance and qualities: and each Case may be said to furnish the observer with an epitome of the natural history of the reptile. In point of preservation, they are superior to any in the other collections in Europe. The spectator will see the obvious impossibility of detailing, in a Catalogue, the different genera of this numerous and complicated class; which are prepared in a very superior manner.

110 This pair of Cases contains five different species of Crocodile, six various kinds of Chamæleons, and about seventy species of Lizards; comprehending all the most curious, and best known, as well as several nondescripts: and presents an unrivalled display of the works of nature in this department of Natural History

111 Another pair of Cases, similar to the last; containing larger specimens of Crocodiles, Lizards, and Iguanas

112 Pair of Cases, containing about fifty kinds of Serpents, most beautifully put up; and containing many new and very rare species

113 A ditto, with sixty kinds; equally curious, and, if possible, better prepared

114 A ditto, with near sixty species; many of them of the larger kinds

115 A collection of the various Titmice, some rare; among which is Parus Pendulinus

116 Four unknown species of Titmice, Parus

117 Four ditto, ditto

118 Pair of Golden Manakins

119 Magnificent specimen of the Japan Peacock (male and female) and the Wild Turkey, in the Mahogany Glass Case; the whole of the Birds in which were presented by her late Majesty to the Museum

91 The Tailor Bird, Motacilla Sutoria (male and female) with their highly curious nest, from the East Indies; the only specimen known in Britain

92 HUMMING BIRDS

This collection of Humming Birds is unique; as a whole it greatly exceeds in beauty, variety, and number, the celebrated collection in the Royal Museum in Paris; and contains twice the quantity of birds of this genus described in the great French work of Viellot. The arrangement in this case is strictly scientific, and admirably calculated to display the brilliant colouring of these, the most beauteous of Nature's works in the feathered creation. The case contains upwards of one hundred specimens; and is absolutely unrivalled in any cabinet that exists: there are also included in this Lot thirty-two species not in the large Case, or at all noticed by any writer. Perhaps the whole of the Continental Museums could not furnish as many as are together in this Lot

TWENTY-SIXTH DAY'S SALE.

Lot 1.

TO BE SOLD PRECISELY AT ONE O'CLOCK ON TUESDAY, JUNE 8.

The celebrated and highly curious MILITARY CARRIAGE of the EX-EMPEROR of FRANCE, in which he made the Campaign of Russia, and which was captured, with the whole of his valuable property, on the evening of the Battle of Waterloo, and sent, with the officer who took it, by Marshal Blucher, to the Prince Regent, from whom it was purchased by its present proprietor for the sum of three thousand guineas, independent of the diamonds, diamond snuff-box, and other valuables.

The interest excited by the exhibition of these articles was perhaps never exceeded in these kingdoms: nearly eight hundred thousand persons paid for admission to examine them, although it has only been exhibited in the large provincial towns of England and Scotland. In Ireland it has only visited Dublin, and no place whatever in Wales.

As a speculation for India or America, it could not fail to answer the purpose of a public exhibition.

It remains still in precisely the same state it was left by Napoleon, having never received or wanted the least repair. The Travelling Boxes of the domestics, and the Cover for travelling, with the Ebony Pay-box, and other requisites for an exhibition, are included.

The whole of the valuable property taken with the Carriage, and forming with it the exhibition, will be offered in one lot, but should no purchaser appear, it will then be divided as follows:

LOT

1 The Carriage
2 Iron Bedstead, in which the Emperor slept when in camp
3 Bed of fine Merino wool, in leather case, used with the bedstead, and in the carriage
4 Ditto, ditto
5 The celebrated Surtout worn in the Russian campaign, made of grey cloth, lined in the sleeves and body with sable
6 A wadded Silk Under-waistcoat, worn with the above
7 A Travelling Cap, of blue velvet, bordered with rich fur
8 Suit of the rich Green-and-gold Liveries worn by the domestics of Napoleon at the Battle of Waterloo
9 Ditto, ditto
10 Hat, Coat, and Waistcoat, of ditto
11 Saddle-cloth, and Pistol-holsters, of Joseph Buonaparte, taken at Vittoria 12 Lot of Buckles, and other ornaments, from the Imperial harness
13 Complete Uniform of the Colonel of Lancers, worn by the Son of Louis Buonaparte, when nine years old

14 An Opera-glass, used by Napoleon, and presented by him to the signal officer at Elba

15 Two foreign Orders of Honour, taken at Waterloo

16 Two ditto

 Every thing that follows was taken in the carriage, and was once the property of the Prince Regent; and most of the articles are engraved or chased with the arms, crest, and cypher of the Emperor

17 The highly curious Toilette-box, fitted up under the inspection of Maria Louisa, and presented by her to the Emperor on his departure for Russia. It contains more luxuries and conveniences than have ever yet been seen packed in the same space, as most of the articles were made for it; and the recesses carved in the solid mahogany show the place where each one was deposited without any package, and the state of the articles evinces the security with which they travelled

On the carriage being taken, this box first attracted the notice of the Prussians, the lock was broken with an axe, and the contents, independent of what follows, were about three hundred diamonds, some of great value, and two thousand double Napoleons, which occupied the bottom of the case.

18 Napoleon's curious Penknife, with the arms and crest engraved on it

19 A Tooth-brush

20 Ditto

21 A pair of Boot-hooks

22 A Razor, often used by Napoleon

23 A ditto

24 A pair of Scissars

25 A pair of Compasses, and the Hook for suspending the Time-piece

26 An elegant Shaving apparatus, a Soap-box, with a place for the sponge

26*A square Box, with a Composition for the Teeth

27 A square Soap-box, with a square of Windsor Soap found in it

28 An Ink-stand, with a place for wafers and sand

28 A square Smelling-bottle, Eau de Cologne

30 A round ditto, with Honey-water

31 A ditto, with Selle de Vinaigre

32 Fluted ivory Needle-case

33 Black ivory Case, for silk and thread

34 Gold Tongue-scraper

35 Cork-screw

36 Gimlet, with pearl handles

37 Drawing apparatus

38 Razor-strop

39 Elegant Shaving-brush

40 Black ivory Tooth-pick Case, with twelve sandal-wood Tooth-picks

41 The Chronometer, or Time-piece of the army made expressly for the Emperor by Muignier; it is of the finest workmanship, and by it the time of the French army was regulated

42 The magnificent Diamond Snuff-box presented by the City of Marseilles to General Buonaparte previous to his sailing for Egypt. On the lid are the initials N. B. in Brilliants, surrounded by a border of larger ones

43 The Looking-glass for the Toilette-box

44 Breakfast Plate of Silver, strongly gilt

45 Ditto, ditto

46 Breakfast Knife and Spoon

47 Ditto and Fork

48 A Tea-spoon

49 Ditto

50 A Rouleau, for holding Napoleons

51 A small Candlestick of elegant workmanship
52 Ditto
53 Beautiful small Tea-pot, finely embossed with the arms, crest, and cipher of Napoleon 54 An elegant Coffee ditto
55 Sugar-box to match the Tea-pot
56 Very handsome Coffee-cup and Saucer
57 Chocolate-pot
58 Tea-caddie; it was found nearly filled with diamonds, and the Cross of the Legion of Honour was also in it
59 Lamp, and apparatus for boiling tea, coffee, or chocolate
60 Napoleon's own Gold Cross, as Commander of the Legion of Honour, attached to the same ribbon as worn by himself
61 The large Wash-hand Basin of Silver, strongly gilt
62 The Grand Cross of the Legion of Honour
63 Another Order of the Legion of Honour, and of the Iron Crown
64 A large Brilliant found in the Tea-caddie
65 Another ditto
66 A Tumbler-glass, broken at the time the Toilette-box was forced open; the only article injured 67 A Pair of Rifle Pistols, made at the Versailles manufactory for Napoleon, whose initials are on them when General Buonaparte; they are plain, much battered, and were probably favourites, as their date shows them to have been his companions during the whole of his eventful career. The instruments for cleaning, repairing, and charging the pistols, are included in this lot 68 Pair of Napoleon's Spurs, found in the bottom of the carriage
69 Pair of Buckles, plain silver

70 A Drawer from a small Canteen, containing a Tumbler-glass, two small Tumblers for Spirits, an Egg-cup of China; Pepper, Salt-box, and Mustard-pot, all of silver, having the contents as left by the Emperor at his last breakfast before the battle of Waterloo still in them
71 A strong Silver Sandwich-box
72 A Silver Dejeuné-plate, used in ordinary in the carriage
73 A ditto
74 A Silver Fork and Spoon, in constant use in the carriage
75 A Ditto

93 A Muslin ditto

94 A Pair of Cashimeer small-clothes

95 A Pair of Braces

96 A Diaper Towel, marked N—10

97 Another Linen ditto

98 Another marked L. and crown, which probably belonged to Louis XVIII.

99 Flesh-brush

100 Green silk Pincushion, filled with sweet-scented wood

101 A pair of the Imperial Postillion's Boots

102 A ditto

103 A silver Helmet, taken at Waterloo

104 A Trophy of French Arms and Colours, from Waterloo

105 Set of Chessmen in a round wooden box, used by the Emperor in the Russian campaign

106 Set of Markers, for the game of Loto; also from the Russian campaign

The two massive Silver Articles of personal convenience, used in the carriage, will be disposed of by Private Contract.
